4-H Volunteer Personnel Policies and Procedures

Volunteer leadership is vital to 4-H. The following policies must be maintained for 4-H programs to be successful.

Expected conduct of 4-H Volunteers

The WSU Cooperative Extension 4-H Program prides itself on providing hands-on education and opportunities for youth. The major purposes of these conduct standards are to ensure safety and well being of youth in the 4-H program and to provide a positive learning environment.

4-H Volunteers will:

- Represent WSU Cooperative Extension 4-H Youth Development with dignity and pride.
- Respect members, parents, other volunteers, extension faculty, and others. Refrain from physical or verbal abuse.
- Work in a cooperative manner.
- Conduct oneself in a courteous, respectful manner, exhibit good sporting conduct, and provide positive role models.
- Respect and follow the Washington 4-H Polices as listed in EM0758, along with specific county policies and project expectations.
- Comply with equal opportunity and anti-discrimination laws.
- Not consume alcohol or drugs at 4-H events where under-age youth are present.
- Not use illegal drugs.
- Accept the responsibility to promote and support 4-H in order to develop an effective county, state, and national program.
